Meeting set for 7 p.m. Tuesday

Commercial, sport fishermen unite in conservation effort

BY DENA BISNETTE

Commercial and sport fishermen are working together to try to form a lobbying delegation promoting conservation of redfish and speckled trout.

According to Bobby Perkins, a meeting for commercial and sport fishermen and anyone in a related business will be conducted Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the Hancock County Courthouse.

Perkins, a Waveland resident who is a third-generation commercial fisherman, said the purpose of the meeting is to choose eight representatives, including members of each organized group of commercial and sports fishermen, to take the matter before a group of Gulf Coast legislators on March 10 in Jackson.

He said he hopes the delegation will include people from all of the coastal counties.

Perkins explained that the plans for the delegation arose from a discussion he had with a local sport fisherman, William Kimbrell, during a Thursday night meeting sponsored by Bureau of Marine Resources and Mississippi Department of Wildlife Conservation.

"There was no yelling, no cussing and no fighting. There were disagreements and some of them got a little loud, but nobody got out of hand and it was a good, productive meeting," the fisherman said.

"It is the first time that I have seen commercial fishermen and sport fishermen working together. We have a problem that is of concern to all fishermen."

"A whole lot of talk is cheap. Somebody needs to do something."

Thursday's meeting drew more than 60 people, including Joseph Gex Jr., a Bay St. Louis attorney and sport fisherman who serves on the state's wildlife conservation commission.

Two fishermen's organizations, Gulf Fisherman's Association for commercial fishermen and a sport fishing group called GCCA, were represented.

About 20 to 25 of the people in attendance indicated that they were commercial fishermen, while the rest were sport fishermen, Perkins said.

A similar meeting in Gulfport reportedly drew only 12 people, and a third drew no one.

Among the items the representatives chosen Tuesday are expected to pursue are closer coordination with agencies such as Bureau of Marine Resources to allow fishermen to take advantage of new technology and the education of biologists.

In addition, the conservation of redfish and speckled trout was discussed Tuesday, and the fishermen agreed that pursuing the establishment of a floating closed season on the two species would be beneficial.

The closed season would be determined by biologists and would prohibit fishing during the peak reproduction seasons of the two species.

Another problem is remedying changes that have occurred in the environment and habitat of species being fished.

"This is not the same environment and habitat that I fished when I was younger, or that my father and grandfather fished. We need to bring back the oysters, the mix of salt and fresh water. Everything else follows the oysters," Perkins explained.

"We want to look at fishing as a whole. There has been some over-fishing but that isn't all of the problem."

He said he hopes that Tuesday's meeting will attract "representatives of every facet of the fishing community, commercial fishermen, sport fishermen, crabbers, whatever, and some buyers and sellers too."

He said he believes that there are 20,000 to 30,000 votes statewide among fishermen, people involved in related industries and their families.

"That many votes ought to make the legislators pay attention," the fisherman said.

Prior to being presented to the legislators, the fishermen's concerns will be taken before the commission's research and development board.

OLD FASHIONED PRICES—A line for lunch winds along the east and back walls of Waveland American Post 77's hall Saturday while those already served enjoy red beans and rice at the 1888 price of $1 per plate for adults and 50 cents for children. Soft drinks were served at five cents and beer was 25 cents. The luncheon was the first of several events planned in observance of Waveland's centennial year and attracted more than 750 people. (Staff photo by Dena Bisnette)

Marquar, Compretta fighting for speed limits

BY DENA BISNETTE

A local legislator and a railroad workers' union representative have joined forces to fight for proposed train speed limit legislation.

The legislator is State Representative J.P. Compretta of Bay St. Louis. The railroad worker's union representative is David Marquar of Waveland, who serves as state legislative director for the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employees.

Together with Representative Bob Short of Gulfport, the two have been testifying this week before the legislature's public utilities subcommittee.

They have been arguing for legislation that would allow the state public service commission to regulate train speeds.

Their efforts started as a result of a settlement in litigation brought against several Gulf Coast municipalities including Waveland by Cheasapeake Seaboard Rail Transportation, Inc., also known as CSX.

CSX had filed a lawsuit after Jackson County placed a five m.p.h. limit on a 10-mile section of track outside Pascagoula.

Other municipalities that had local speed limit ordinances were asked to repeal them and to allow trains to travel 55 to 65 m.p.h. through their corporate limits.

School officials report sex education progress

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

Superintendents from the Bay St. Louis-Waveland and Hancock County school districts were guest speakers Thursday at a Community Services Planning Council meeting.

The council had requested the superintendents attend the meeting and report to the group on sex education programs in the schools.

Several months ago the council had passed a resolution asking the school districts to upgrade and increase sex education programs in the schools.

Hancock County School Superintendent Terrell Randolph told the group, in the county school district, sex education is included in a Family Living course.

"With the problems with aids and pregnancy being faced we must have sex education in the curriculum just to be able to cope," he said.

Randolph also told the group a need in the county school district was for education and counseling for fifth and sixth grade students.

He said sex education is necessary on this level to prevent teenage pregnancy.

Each year there are several students who become pregnant during the year and last year there was a fifth grade student in the district who was pregnant, Randolph said.

Dr. Roger Oge, superintendent of the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District, said upgrading of the sex education program following the council's resolution included the purchase of a video package which also contained a video on AIDS.

"This AIDS tape will scare the proverbial pants back on kids," Oge said.

He explained the tape was very graphic and was shown to all high school and junior high students.

Oge also said the sex education program is based on "Saying NO."

It does not necessarily teach about birth control or condoms but teaches premarital sex is wrong, he continued.

Oge told the group very expressive posters to drive the point home to students are also prominently displayed in the schools.

Both Randolph and Oge said they would like to continue expansion of the sex education program but this is just one of many necessary programs which must be funded on a local level and may not be easy to include in curriculum with the currently strict guidelines mandated by the state department of education.

Dead woman identified, investigation continues

BY DENA BISNETTE

St. Tammany Parish authorities have obtained a positive identification of a woman kidnapped in Hancock County early Monday morning and later found dead on Interstate 10 near Slidell, La.

Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson stated that the dead woman was identified as 35-year-old Margie Lee Cox of Highlands, N.C., an employee of Carolina Mountain Bank in Highlands.

Cox had attended a New Orleans Mardi Gras celebration with a male companion, Larry Ross, 39, of Bremerton, Wash., and a Gulfport couple who were not involved in the incident, before being kidnapped at the Highway 603-Kiln exit of I-10.

The man's name had not been released in the initial report because authorities had to determine if he was a suspect first, Peterson said. He said he and the other officers working on the investigation now believe "there is a lot of substance" to the story Ross told them after walking to Diamondhead from the exit Monday morning and reporting the crime at about 4 a.m.

Peterson said authorities have now determined that the kidnapping occurred at about 2:53 a.m.

The woman's body, partially decapitated after having been struck by several cars in poor visibility caused by a heavy rain, was found at 3:40 a.m.

Preliminary autopsy results showed the cause of death to be multiple injuries consistent with being struck by a vehicle, the sheriff added.

Cox and Ross, who had ridden from Gulfport with the other couple, became separated from their companions in the Bourbon Street area of New Orleans.

They had accepted a ride with a man driving a white 1980 or 1981 Buick Skylark. The man, who claimed to be a cab driver, took them to where the vehicle they had shared with the other couple had been parked, and offered to give them a ride back to Gulfport when they found the car gone.

The other couple had taken the car back to Gulfport, Peterson said.

Cuban detainees' release means loss of free labor

BY DENA BISNETTE

Hancock County is losing its Cuban detainees.

According to Hancock County Jail Warden Jim Odom, the county started housing federal prisoners in March 1986 as part of a program to make the jail financially self-sufficient.

Housing a person considered a federal prisoner or detainee generates an income of $45 per day for the county, Odom explained. An additional dollar is paid each day to the prisoner or detainee himself for use as spending money.

They generated an average of $25,000 per month and the jail budget has been based on that amount.

"Right now, we're operating right at budget," the warden said. "We're not below or above it."

The first group of prisoners sent to the county consisted of 11 Cubans being detained by the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) and eventually grew to include 18 of the foreign nationals.

Odom said the Cubans are either being sent to halfway houses or to the homes of family members who live in the United States. Transfers of the detainees began about a week ago and the last five were scheduled to leave the jail on Saturday.

Odom said John Caplinger, district director for the INS in New Orleans, La., told him that arrangements are being made to replace the 18 Cubans with 25 federal prisoners who will be housed in Hancock County for three months.

After three months, another group will be sent to Hancock County, also on a three-month rotation basis.

The first group will be a combination of Mexicans, Columbians and Haitians including 23 men and 2 women, Odom said.

Their backgrounds will have to be checked when they arrive to determine which may be designated trusties and used as workers and which are "lock-down" prisoners who must remain in the secured section of the jail.

While the income that the Cuban detainees provided is being replaced, Odom said some of their talents may not be.

"These people have earned their release," he said. "They worked. They've been good and haven't caused any problems."

"During the uprising of the Cuban detainees at Atlanta and Oakdale, they worked with us. They actually did everything they could to help us through it."

Some classifications of state inmates can be used to replace the Cuban workers, but most who can be classified as trusties are already working at the county farm in Kiln, started last year as another cost-saving measure.

"Where we have lost a number of workers was at the county shop, where they did body and mechanic work, and a few in public service who were working at the food pantry and helping the welfare department with commodities distribution. We also lost our barber," Odom explained.

"It's a great loss to the county because the type of people we had in here did so much public service work and furnished free labor for the county."

In Memoriam

In Loving Memory of

"SHIRLEY"

February 22, 1987

To us she was a wife, a mother, a "mamall" and a friend.
On the outside she acted tough enough to be nicknamed "Sarge," yet we knew that on the inside she was tender and full of love.
There was never a dull moment when she was around; her laughter could fill a room. From within her heart came a kindness that made no one feel like a stranger.
She was always there for us no matter what our needs. She helped us through our sorrows and shared our joys.
Most important to her was the love of family and friends. She was the "heart" of our family.
Love, Theron, Deron, Randy, Bev, Josh, Kaleb, Tammy, Donnie, Zachary and Larisa
P.S. I wish she were here. No one smiled like my "Mamall."

For workaholics

Work and pleasure difficult to balance

By Linda S. Moore
Mississippi Cooperative
Extension Service

Many individuals struggle to balance work with other outside involvements, but others prefer to let their jobs dominate their personal lives rather than devote time to other activities. These people are called workaholics.

Norine Barnes, family and child development specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service, defined workaholics as "anyone who works to the point that work interferes with the rest of his or her life."

Barnes said the term workaholic is derived from alcoholism and is similar to drug abuse, but is even more difficult to overcome. She said that with alcohol addiction, a person must completely stop drinking. But, with workaholism, a person cannot completely stop work and maintain an income.

Barnes said workaholism goes beyond normal hardwork at a job or a temporary situation when extra work is required on the job.

"Workaholism is a longterm condition that will usually increase over the years," Barnes said. "Granted, jobs take a lot of effort today because there is so much competition, but workaholics are those who abuse their rights to hard work. They rationalize what they are doing."

The specialist said that many people are workaholics because they need a source of self-esteem. She said society applauds hard workers and will even credit them with working for their family, when they are actually hurting the family by not spending time with them.

Barnes said when self-esteem is the cause for over work, efforts should be taken to improve the individual's self-concept and find other sources of self-esteem besides work.

"Work can be used as a way of avoiding relationships," Barnes said. "The greatest damage of workaholism is done on families. Singles also need to be aware of patterns they are setting if they have a family later."

After workaholism is diagnosed, Barnes recommends the individual take steps to overcoming the problem.

She said if family or other relationships are causing a person to work more, problems should be identified and resolved within the relationships. Time should then be set aside for family activities.

Barnes said family or friends of workaholics should be careful how they approach the person about their concerns without putting the workaholic on the defensive.

She said in some instances, a mediator or professional counselor may be needed for assistance in discussing the problem.

Consumer Update on Water

By Janet K. Lukens
Coast Consumer
Management Center

Growing concern over the purity of tap water has sent consumers scurrying to the market to buy water in a jug. Other consumers, who dislike the taste of tap water, are willing to purchase water at the cost of 4 or 5 cents a glass as opposed to a fraction of a cent from the faucet.

Rather than draining the pocket-book to purchase bottled water, you may wish to consider a few other alternatives. Some will at least improve the taste if not the quality of your drinking water.

If you're concerned about bacterial contamination, use the standard remedy of boiling water for 20 minutes.

Also, refrigerating water not only improves the flavor but also dissipates heavy chlorine tastes and odors. It has been suggested that using your blender or mixer for several minutes will aerate water and remove the chlorine and volatile chemicals more efficiently.

The use of a simple faucet aerator may improve the flavor of your water. A more expensive solution is the purchase of a home water-treatment system.

Signs that indicate that something is wrong with your water include brown, cloudy, or murky-looking water; foaming; smelly or bad-tasting water; and sudden changes in the water's appearance, taste, or aroma. Many toxic hazards are invisible, tasteless, and odorless, however.

Since laboratory analysis is the only sure way to confirm that your water meets safety standards, the EPA suggests you try contacting your local water officials or local health department.

For general and technical information on drinking water quality, call the Drinking Water Hotline at 1-800-426-4791 in operation Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. EST.

Quotables by CUEVAS

The week of February 22-26 has been designated Severe Weather Week in Mississippi by the National Weather Service in cooperation with the Mississippi Emergency Management Agency.

The residents of Mississippi are no strangers to the dangers of severe weather, with so many tornados each year.

Many can remember the February 28, 1987 tornado which cut a path across the state not too far from here destroying the communities of Glade and Powers killing six people and causing $30 million in damages.

A statewide drill is scheduled for Wednesday, Feb. 24 and in case of bad weather will be postponed until the Feb. 25 or 26.

Civil Defense Director Bobby Boudin reports Hancock County will participate in this statewide drill.

Just a few nights ago several residents of Waveland were awakened by a severe thunderstorm with strong winds which felled several trees, destroyed an auto and caused power outage for a few customers.

The February monthly meeting of the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce's officers and directors will be held on Tuesday, 6 p.m. at the Waveland Police Station's courtroom, U.S. Highway 90.

The chamber will conduct several regular monthly meetings throughout the county this year.

Chamber members and concerned residents are welcome at the chamber meetings.

Have you heard about the very good Hancock County Blood Drawing recently held.

John Rutherford, chairman, said a total of 130 units were collected at the Blood Drawing held at the American Legion Home in Bay St. Louis.

It has been 10 to 15 years since that many units were collected, Rutherford said.

The county's record is 222 units collected many, many years ago at the old Youth Center. There are quite a few folks around who do not remember the old Youth Center.

A special thanks goes to the blood donors, doctors, nurses and the many volunteers who helped make the Blood Drawing a success.

I received a telephone call from Herman Lizana of the Fenton Community telling me about the problems several of the residents are having with television reception.

He said someone seems to be using a high lineal CB radio in the Fenton area and it causes picture and voice to go on television sets when the CB radio is in use.

Lizana said he has contacted the FCC who have told him this type of a CB radio is illegal and if it's use continues to contact them and they will investigate the origin.

There are times when residents of the Fenton Community are without television for over a hour Lizana said.

Having been involved in communications for three years while in the military, I know it is very easy for radio signals to be traced.

I had a visit from longtime friend and Bay St. Louis resident Peter (Pete) Faucetta who celebrated his 75 birthday on Thursday.

Pete was very proud of the fact that he had just received a honoray life membership in the Knights of Columbus, an organization he joined in 1936.

He has been retired from the United States Coast Guard for several years and has been taking things easy lately.

Governor's Weekly Report

BY GOV. RAY MABUS

During my State of the State speech last month, I said I wanted 1988 to be the "Year of Making Government Work Better." I'm happy to say we're already making progress in that direction on two fronts.

The Mississippi Senate last week passed a bill that would create a commission to study how we can shrink the size of state government. If the House passes it, the commission would report back this fall on how we can reduce the number of state agencies, boards and commissions from some 135 to no more than 15.

I believe this will not only improve the delivery of services, but also save a significant amount of money.

But in order to truly make government work better, we must look at counties as well. That's why I supported a bill this week requiring the "unit system" of government in all counties.

What is the unit system? Basically, it would require day-to-day county administrative duties to be done by professional administrators. Supervisors' primary responsibility would be to pass a county budget and make policy decisions.

Most counties now operate under a much different system.

Currently, there are no checks and balances in most counties like there are at almost every other level of government. County supervisors have both the power to levy taxes and to then spend the money. This system is like an invitation to corruption.

In most counties, each supervisor purchases and receives goods for his own district or "beat"; directs his own maintenance, repairs and road work; hires his own workers; and buys his own equipment.

It's like having five governments in each county instead of one.

Under the bill I support, day-to-day spending would be taken out of the hands of the individual supervisors. Instead, a purchasing director hired by the board of supervisors would do the buying. Such a system would be more efficient and less likely to be abused.

In the same manner, day-to-day administration of county services would be improved greatly.

More specifically, the bill would require a county administrator; a strong centralized purchasing system for all equipment, materials, supplies and commodities; personnel policies; tough record keeping and financial reporting requirements; and coordinated road maintenance and construction.

In short, the unit system would require accountability.

Supervisors' duties would be legislative only such as passing a budget, developing plans and policies, and levying taxes. Supervisors would oversee the work of the centralized, administrative staff.

This bill would not decrease supervisors' ability to govern. It would simply make the county government more efficient while protecting the public from elected officials who would exploit their office for their own benefit.

The need for a new approach to county government was demonstrated dramatically by the FBI's Operation Pretence. Nearly 50 people have been indicted—almost 12 percent of Mississippi's county supervisors.

As I have said before, halfway, halting steps will not solve the problems faced in most counties. The time for study and trial runs and options is past. We need the unit system of government in every county and we need it now.

I believe the legislature's interest in passing such a bill is greater than ever this year. It could be one of the first, important steps in making government work better in Mississippi.

ASK OCHSNER

Q. What rate is considered a normal growth pattern for children? My son, who is 13 years old, has grown four inches taller in the past year. Is this normal? Mrs. J.W.T. Monroe, La.

A. Dr. Teresa Zimmerman, a pediatric endocrinologist at the Ochsner Clinic, New Orleans, says that the whole process of growing up, including puberty, always has its hazards. But for some children, just the process of growing itself can be fraught with difficulties.

When determining whether the stature of a child is in the abnormal range, it is necessary not only to compare his height to other children, but also to see how his parents compare with other adults.

Normally, a child over three years of age should grow about two inches a year until puberty, which occurs usually between 10 and 14 years of age.

During puberty they should grow even faster—perhaps as much as three to four inches a year for one or two years.

Girls grow about two inches after their menstrual period starts, while boys tend to have their biggest growth spurt toward the end of puberty.

In order to determine if your child's growth rate is abnormal, an X-ray of the child's hand frequently can reveal the age of the bones as compared to the child's chronological age.

In young children there is a space between the bones in the hand which allows for future growth and development.

If it is revealed that the bones are very young relative to the age, the child may be having some growth impairment due to a deficiency of thyroid hormones, which is easier to treat than other hormone deficiencies.

Although a growth of three to four inches within a short period of time is not abnormal for a 13-year-old, an excess of growth during this time, should not be dismissed by parents for too long, says Dr. Zimmerman. Any child exhibiting unusual growth patterns should be brought to see his pediatrician.

Sen. Pepper's bill would create National Deafness Institute

Editor

The Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

Dear Editor:

Deafness is America's ignored illness:

There are 22 million deafened Americans, yet in the universe of government research they pale by comparison to other afflictions—despite the fact that hearing impairment is the third most common malady in the United States.

For example: Federal spending totals less than $2 per victim compared to the 2.2 million persons with vision loss, on whom the government spends four times as much.

Why? Persons with hearing impairment are not perceived as being ill as opposed to someone with a physically debilitating illness.

Now in the Congress there is movement to correct this injustice. Congressman Claude Pepper (D-Fla.) and Sen. Tom Harkin (R-Iowa) have introduced legislation which would create a National Institute on Deafness and Other Communicative Disorders.

It would remove hearing research from the pool of medical research and make it an independent unit under the National Institutes of Health. Eventually it would give hearing research added priority and the opportunity to attract more researchers and private support.

At present, the study of hearing and communication disorders is under the National Institute of Neurological and Communicative Disorders and Stroke (NINCDS), along with 650 other diseases. NINCDS is a branch of the National Institutes of Health.

In the past six years, hearing research has only received, on the average, 10.4 percent of the total monies allocated to NINCDS. Yet, hearing impairment costs our government more than $17 billion dollars annually when measured in terms of medical care, the added costs of special education, and loss of productivity.

This bill would remove the study of hearing and communication disorders to its own institute (still under National Institutes of Health), giving it national focus and visibility.

A hearing on the legislation has been scheduled on Feb. 22 before Rep. Henry Waxman's Health and Environment Committee.

Your attention to the plight of the hearing impaired would be of immense help in creating public awareness of the problem and, hopefully, generate support in the Congress.

It would be in the public interest.

Cordially,

United States Senator

Thad Cochran

Senator Thad Cochran (R-Miss.) says that the INF treaty and efforts to reform the federal budget process and welfare program will occupy much of congress' time during the 1988 session.

"There are many issues, of course, that will come before Congress this year," the Senator commented, "but the arms reduction treaty, and proposals to streamline and reform the budget process and the nation's welfare system will certainly be in the forefront of our deliberations."

Senator Cochran, discussing the agenda as Congress completed the first week of the 1988 session, noted that the budget and appropriations process last year "became bogged down in a near-deadlock that left many members frustrated and concerned, as well as the administration and the American people who watched this process."

He reiterated his support for a two-year budget, rather than the current annual budget process.

Senator Cochran also pointed out he is a co-sponsor of welfare reform legislation that would streamline the present system, and provide more educational training and job incentives, to break the cycle of welfare dependency. The bill also seeks to strengthen the family unit, and gives judges and family court authorities more power in making certain those obligated for child support meet those obligations.

The Senator says the INF treaty and subsequent arms reduction negotiations between the United States and Soviet Union "are among the most important diplomatic initiatives in our history, in that they could make world peace and stability a more realistic prospect for the future."

Senator Cochran is a member of the Appropriations, Agriculture and Labor and Human Resources committees, as well as a member of the Senate Republican leadership team.

He concluded by saying of President Reagan's State of the Union speech, "I liked the speech. The President was inspiring and forceful. He is justified in his hope for a better understanding with the Soviet Union. His leadership in this area has been, and will continue to be, a tremendous contribution to world peace. He will obviously be a strong force for the balance of his term of office."

In Congress

By Congressman Trent Lott

STOPPING CHILD PORN

I receive mail about everything from AIDS to unemployment. Some of you support my position on issues, while others don't always agree with my stance. But I have found one issue that crosses all barriers.

Every letter I receive about child pornography takes the position that it must be stopped. And rightly so.

I oppose the sexual exploitation of children through child pornography. Child molestation is among the most heinous crimes in its commission and most tragic in its long-term consequences.

Not only is the victim's childhood turned into a nightmare of fear and confusion, but for the rest of the victim's life, that child will almost always bear deep emotional scars.

Every example of pornography involving the visual depiction of a child engaging in explicit sexual conduct is a record of the most despicable sexual molestation.

So what can we do about it? Well, many of you have taken the right first step and contacted my office. So what am I doing about it?

I am working to pass legislation that would put the criminals, who are using and abusing our children, out of business and behind bars.

Here is a case where law enforcement needs our help. We must have a law that prohibits the use of computers to advertise, distribute, or receive child pornography.

We must prohibit a parent or legal guardian from selling or otherwise transferring custody or control of that minor where that guardian has knowledge that the minor would be used for the production of pornography.

As insane as that sounds, it happens. And finally, we must allow the seizure and forfeiture of profits derived from child pornography. If it is cost prohibitive, organized crime will stay away.

Another concern of mine is what is commonly referred to as "dial-a-pron." It is my understanding that the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) has been instructed to enforce a measure which would prevent minors from calling these numbers, either by requiring personal identification numbers, access codes or credit cards. This is a good move.

So, in summary, we must update Federal law to take into account new technologies and ways of doing business employed by the pornography industry; and second, we must remove loopholes and weaknesses in the law, which have given child-porn criminals the upper hand for far too long.

We must fight back and we must do it now. Our future is at stake!

County school district hires administrators

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
The Hancock County School Board Wednesday approved a list of administrators for the various schools for the upcoming year.

Included on the list of administrators as recommended by Superintendent Terrell Randolph and approved by the board are D. E. Hillman, David Kopf, Cecil Powell, Kim Myrick, W.H. Haddock, Myrna Bourgeois and Clementine Williams.

This group of people was approved only as administrators and not assigned to any particular school.

School assignments for administrators is expected to be discussed at March 7 school board meeting.

The meeting begins at 5:30 p.m. at the Administrative Offices at Stennis International Airport.

Also at the meeting the board voted to employ math teacher

Charles Rolison to math skills tutoring sessions to help eleventh grade students prepare for the Functional Literacy Examination.

This examination will be given to all members of the junior class in April and students must pass this test to be qualified for a high school diploma.

This program is offered free of charge to all students in the junior class but students will be responsible for their own transportation.

The Functional Literacy Examination program is a part of the 1982 Education Reform Act of Mississippi.

The board also established a policy which will prevent any employee from being assigned to a position which would require them to be directly supervised by a relative by blood or marriage to the third degree.

Marquar.....

Waveland was the only Hancock County entity with a local speed limit and required trains to slow down to 35 m.p.h. within the city's corporate limits. The board of aldermen refused to repeal the ordinance, but recently agreed to a settlement in order to avoid the costs involved in fighting a legal battle with CSX.

The settlement calls for a 45 m.p.h. limit for one year, with CSX to give 90 days' prior notice to the city in the event that limit changes before that time.

Marquar became involved in the matter through concern about possible hazards from derailments and other accidents.

"Mostly what I'm trying to do is inform people how dangerous it is," Marquar said.

He said one of the major concerns he, Compretta and Short share is the problem of getting people out of the area of an accident involving a hazardous chemical spill.

"We're looking at communities like Ansley," Marquar explained. "They have no way out, unless they have a boat."

In addition, all of the schools in Waveland and Bay St. Louis except Bay Senior High School are within two miles of tracks, including St. Clare Catholic School, Waveland Elementary, Bay Junior High School, St. Stanislaus, Our Lady Academy and Bay Catholic Elementary School. Two miles is considered the first evacuation limit for hazardous chemicals, Marquar explained.

In addition, the only schools that are not between the railroad tracks and the water are Waveland Elementary and Bay Junior High.

"We have to worry about these children. For Ansley and anyone else on that side of the tracks, boats are the only way out," he said.

"You can practice and practice it, but when it really happens how do you get the kids out?"

With the exception of one of Waveland's two fire stations, all emergency services are located above the tracks. If the tracks are blocked, Marquar feels there may be a possibility that emergency units could not get to the other side without a considerable detour and delay.

He also said there is not enough fire protection and enough law enforcement to handle evacuation.

"The railroad has yet to sit down with the communities and try to help come up with a plan for use if there is a major disaster," he said, adding that CSX attorney Raymond Brown had said the railroad might be interested in doing so after he had testified in front of the subcommittee.

He added that Brown's statement is still unofficial and that he feels a plan should have been worked out already.

Marquar also pleaded for public support of the proposed legislation.

"If the people don't get involved and write these legislators, we may lose it and have to look at trains going 55 and 65 through our community. We need to get behind Compretta and Short and help them get the legislation passed."

"I feel they presented the bill real well, but they need help," he added.

Chairmen of the subcommittee are representatives Isiah Fredericks and Don Underwood. They can be reached at P.O. Box 1018, Jackson, Miss. 39215-1018.

No Gulf Coast legislators are members of the committee.

'Plaza Suite' saves best for last

BY DENA BISNETTE

Sometimes the best is saved for last, which is the case with the current Center Stage production, "Plaza Suite."

"Plaza Suite" is a Neil Simon comedy similar to one of the author's other plays, "California Suite," which was recently presented by the Waveland Players. The show has a single setting, an opulently furnished hotel suite, which is occupied at various times by several different couples.

The guests being looked at in the show include three couples, the first of which is using the suite while their home is being painted. The second is a pair of old high school sweethearts; and the third is a distraught pair of parents of a bride.

Bay St. Louis resident Gayle Roy is featured in the third scene as the mother of a bride who has locked herself in the bathroom only moments before the wedding.

Roy is the perfect foil for John B. "Shorty" Sneed as the two of them try to communicate with their daughter through a keyhole, then wind up taking hysterical measures to make sure the wedding takes place.

Roy, a comedic veteran of several Gulf Coast theatre stages, starts out prim and proper as she tries to coax her daughter out of the bathroom and talks to the father of the groom on the telephone, but gradually deteriorates into a raving woman who looks about to drop dead of a cardiac arrest.

She panics when she decides her husband will blame her daughter's fear on her, then has to cope with him after he panics.

Sneed's entrance is grand, complete with tailcoat and large cigar as he tries unsuccessfully to break down the bathroom door.

As the two tear from one end of the stage to the other at a frantic pace well in keeping with the situation, Roy's hysterical energy level continues to escalate, particularly when he husband decides he's going to use a seventh-story ledge to get to the bride through the bathroom window.

Roy slows down only when she stops to sob as she fears he has fallen off the ledge, then goes wild as Sneed comes bursting through the door.

Sneed's comedic timing is at its best as he keeps up with Roy throughout the hilarious scene.

Tiffany Favre, a Hancock North Central drama club member who resides in Kiln, makes her stage debut in a walk-on part as the bride. She models a wedding dress supplied by her mother, Patricia Favre of Brides and Formal by Patricia in Bay St. Louis, who also supplied Roy's costume. Her groom is Bill Synder.

In the second scene, Skip Wusnack plays a former New Jersey resident who has become a famous Hollywood producer. Visiting New York, he has called his high school sweetheart, played by Debby Weeks, for an afternoon reunion.

Wusnack, whose previous stage appearance was as John Adams in the Waveland Players' production of the musical "1776," turns in a competent performance as a hypocrite extolling the virtue of an uncorrupt woman as he tries to lure his guest into the bedroom.

Weeks plays a naïve, seemingly unwilling sweetheart who is now married yet is fascinated at the idea of a rendezvous with her now-famous classmate.

In the first scene, Ruth Ann Pecoul plays a woman who has schemed to have her house painted on her anniversary so that she and her husband, portrayed by Doug Ragland, can celebrate in the same suite where they spent their honeymoon.

She steals the scene as she first argues with her supposed workaholic husband over every little detail of the anniversary, while he disagrees as to date, number of years married and whether the hotel suite is the same.

She jokingly accuses the man, who shows every evidence of being in the throes of a severe midlife crisis, of having an affair, then shows an unexpected reaction when he admits to doing so.

Susan Bailey makes a brief appearance as the young secretary with whom the husband is having the affair.

Also appearing is Bill Sumrall as a hotel waiter.

The play is directed by Chuck White. It continues through Feb. 28 at the Center Stage Playhouse on Coward Road. Ticket information is available from the theatre at 896-6455.

Travirca pleads innocent to charges

Former Hancock County Supervisor James N. Travirca has pleaded innocent to five felony charges in an indictment handed down against him in the Federal Bureau of Investigation's Operation Pretense.

Travirca, who represented Beat Five before losing last year's election, was given a May 9 court date when he appeared Wednesday at U.S. District Court in Biloxi.

A 16-year veteran of county politics, Travirca is accused of taking $1,200 in kickbacks from Holiman Equipment Co. of Jackson and $1,200 from an unnamed supplier and vendor between 1984 and 1986.

He is charged with bribery, mail fraud, extortion and conspiracy in connection with allegedly arranging the purchase of specific road equipment in exchange for the kickbacks.

He is the third Hancock County supervisor indicted. Sam Perniciaro, former Beat Four supervisor, resigned in January after being convicted on similar charges. Beat Three Supervisor Roger Dale Ladner has also been indicted and pleaded not guilty. He is also awaiting trial.

Peterson said original reports that the driver stopped for gasoline in Slidell were not correct. He actually got off the interstate at Highway 603 and bought the gas at Todd's Mini Mart in Shoreline Park.

With Ross in the front seat of the vehicle, he drove back to I-10 but complained of being tired.

Ross offered to drive and the man stopped at the exit, then let him out of the car to change drivers.

Ross told authorities that as soon as he stepped out of the car, the driver sped off with Cox asleep in the back seat.

"We're definitely looking at a suspect at this point," Peterson stated.

One of the questions that still has not been answered was whether Cox was still alive when she was put out of the Skylark on I-10 about a fifth of a mile from the interchange of interstates 10, 12 and 58, Peterson said.

The Skylark driver was described as a black man between 30 and 35 years old, about six feet tall and weighing about 175 pounds.

"We still have a lot of work to do out in the field. We are comparing notes right now because there are so many agencies working on the cases," the sheriff stated.

In addition to Hancock County and St. Tammany sheriff's departments, investigators include Federal Bureau of Investigation, Mississippi Highway Patrol and Louisiana State Police.

News Briefs

HISTORICAL SOCIETY

The Wednesday meeting of the Hancock County Historical Society will include a special discussion honoring Waveland's 1988 centennial.

The topic will be "Past and Memorable Events of Beautiful Waveland," according to Larry Heller, society publicity chairman.

The public is invited to the meeting, which begins at noon at the Landmark Restaurant and includes a Dutch treat luncheon.

DRAINAGE PROBLEM

Bay St. Louis Mayor Victor Frankiewicz Jr. is asking that the public discontinue burning trash and dumping pine straw or other debris into drainage ditches.

He said the debris caused flooding during recent rains, particularly in the Cedar Point and Spanish Acres areas. In addition to causing flood hazards, blocking a public drainage ditch is illegal.

The mayor added that the problem was discovered when ditches were cleaned this week after weather conditions improved.

St. Ann-St. John carnival ball depicts 'Everyone's a Dreamer'

'Everyone's a Dreamer,' theme for a night of mythically slipping into slumberland, dreaming of a cruise along the Gulf Coast, preparing to sail across the Sea of Memories, highlighted the Krewe of St. Ann-St. John's XIV Annual Carnival Ball held last Saturday evening at the American Legion Home in Waveland.

Reigning as king and queen of the evening's festivities were Bob and Mickey Revere, the 1988 monarchs of St. Ann-St. John's.

Lovely Queen Mickey chose an elegant gown of white bridal satin fashioned along empire lines. The low-cut V neckline was outlined front and back with silver and pearl fringe with the bodice and skirt heavily embroidered with brilliant of silver and gold. Her A-line skirt edged with silver bugle beads and rhinestones swept into a slight graceful train. Her crown elaborately encrusted with Austrian crystal rhinestones and bugle beads with matching scepter completed her regal attire.

Handsome King Bob wore a formal white tuxedo with lapels and cummerbund of gold sequins. His lime green velvet train lined with matching green peau de soie featured a large collar encrusted with rhinestones and large brilliant. An ornate rhinestone crown and scepter matching the queen's completed his attire.

Preparing to sail across the Sea of Memories, the first to board the cruiser was the fairest and most gracious Colleen and Irish Gentleman she had chosen for herself, their majesties, the 1987 King and Queen Isabel and Bob Crais of New Orleans.

As the ship's deck hands prepared to hoist anchor, Chief Boatswain Buddy Williams and his krewe of St. Ann-St. John including, Lois Saucier, Cheryl Colson, Lou Hero, Pere Cabibi, Irene Graff, Velma Schmidt, Dot Neubig, Mildred Rupp, Myrna Bourgeois, Marian Traub, Gay McFarland, Mamie O'Quinn, Phyllis Simon and Mica James were welcomed.

With several guests aboard the cruiser, looking for a dream, who else could be more qualified to bring a dream than the 'Sandman' and Captain of St. Ann-St. John James B. Davis Sr., resplendent in a gold velvet cape embellished with silver sequins and wearing the traditional captain's hat adorned with three white plumes.

Upon his arrival the Sandman found that on board were six distinguished Southern Noblemen who petitioned him to bring them a dream.

Deciding to grant their wishes the Sandman commanded the Grand Marshals, Louis Foret and Floyd Breaux, to escort each of them to a dream.

For Nobleman Michael Bobbitt from the Sunshine State of Florida, he sent a dream as lovely as the full moon and sweet as an orange blossom in spring, Mary Bobbitt.

For Nobleman Bob McClure from the Heart of Dixie and the Yellowhammer State of Alabama, he sent a dream as romantic as the starlit sky and refreshing as the morning dew, Patt Corbell.

For Nobleman Michael St. Romain from the Magnolia State of Mississippi, he unveiled a dream as beautiful as a magnolia in bloom and as warm as the sunshine on a mid-summer morn, Jackie St. Romain.

For Nobleman William Rotherham from the Bayou State of Louisiana he revealed a dream as enchanting as the Belle of the Bayous and as charming as a camellia in springtime, Mayola Rotherham.

For Nobleman Lawrence Freeman from the Lone Star State of Texas he brought a dream as soothing and melodious as a Chopin waltz and as splendid as a bluebonnet in bloom, Helen Rohrbacker.

To Nobleman Rene Williams from the United States of Mexico he sent a dream as marvelous as a red rose and as gracious as the palm trees of Tampico, Nancy Rodriguez.

Having been greeted by their loyal subjects, their majesties commanded that the royal entertainment begin.

After viewing the krewe's lively version of the Bourbon Street

Parade there was just enough time left on our mythical cruise to journey down to the heart of Canal Street to join in the merriment and witness our friends from Louisiana as the California Raisins 'doing their thing'.

As a grand finale to the entertainment and our mythical cruise, St. Ann-St. John Foursome Al Mahae, Bill Kirchan, Conrad Mauffray and Donald Mauffray entertained with their rendition of 'Dreams' and 'When My Dreamboat Comes In.'

Master of ceremonies for the evening was Monroe James.

St. Ann-St. John Carnival Association president is Virginia Thomas; vice president, Theresa James; tableau coordination, Rita Davis and Dorothy Trosclair; scenery and decorations, Buddy Williams; assistant to royalty, Jim Davis Jr.; floor committee, Pat Cileen and Joseph Levy; lighting, Jay Marsh and Alvin Ladner Sr.; door committee, and script captain, Shirley Cox.

Tickets and programs were printed and donated by Louisiana Graphics, Alison and Bob Robertson.

This ball was dedicated to the memory of our late krew member Lil Kenmore and her late spouse, Ed Kenmore.

Music was furnished by The Dixieland Saints and pictures by Frank's Photography.

Cooking school and kitchen tour scheduled

The Diamondhead Country Club will be the scene of the First Annual Diamondhead Academy Cooking School and Kitchen Tour on Saturday, Feb. 27.

The day's activities begin at the Country Club with the cooking school demonstration, conducted by nationally known cookbook author and restaurant consultant Terry Thompson, lunch at the Country Club, and wind up with tours of four Diamondhead Kitchens.

The premier of Diamondhead's new cookbook, "The Cooking School Cookbook" will also be included.

The four homes on the Kitchen Tour are diverse expressions of the owners' taste and cooking styles. The homes of Mr. and Mrs. William Neff and Mr. and Mrs. Herman Zeringue are both contemporary in design, but the interiors are quite different.

The Neff's home, with a family room-kitchen combination, is designed to allow the chef to interact with family and friends.

The Zeringue home is more traditional, and boasts cabinets which were customized by Zeringue with many special features. A raised Acadian cottage, home of Mr. and Mrs. Artis James, is pure country on the inside.

The kitchen's simple pine cupboards compliment the historic flavor of the adjacent keeping room. The last home, belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Garic Toca, was inspired by the "Briers" of Natchez.

The Toca's kitchen, with "His and Hers" cooking areas, reveal the owners' joy in cooking.

"Gourmet-top-Go" dishes will be available for purchase at the Toca residence. Tasting samples of selected "Gourmet-to-Go" dishes will be provided in all four kitchens.

The Cooking School Cookbook will be on sale at all kitchens. This will be the first time the cookbook can be purchased.

Weekly state crop report

Land conversion boosts pine seedling market

MISSISSIPPI STATE—Mississippi timber growers are entering the final weeks of ideal planting time for pine seedlings, and so far, the elements of nature have been with them. But, growers getting off to a late start may find other obstacles.

Conservation measures of the 1985 Farm Bill resulted in a conversion of more than 240,000 acres of erodible cropland to timberland. This additional timber acreage increased the demand for pine seedlings, and seedling suppliers are having difficulty keeping up with demand.

The Mississippi Forestry Commission, the largest supplier of in-state seedlings, reached their production limits this year with 70 million seedlings. The commission also bought 10 million seedlings from a private nursery. But by the end of January, they were completely out.

Weyerhaeuser, a major supplier of pine seedlings for the southern region, including Mississippi, produced 254 million seedlings this year and were sold out by the middle of the growing season.

"Last year we had several million seedlings left over. This year we have a waiting list for several million," said Susan Story, a sales and service representative for Weyerhaeuser.

"We already have plans to produce at least 40 million more seedlings next year in an effort to keep up with demand," she said.

Dr. Tom Monaghan, head of the forestry department of the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service, said producers who need more trees should contact private nurseries immediately.

"I believe growers can find the seedlings. It will just take some calling around and checking sources carefully," he said. "Growers should be sure the seedlings they buy are adapted for our area."

Forestry officials expect timber acreage to continue to increase as even more erodible cropland is converted to forest land.

"The government has relaxed some of the rules regarding erodible cropland, and we expect even more land to be put into trees this year," Monaghan said.

This will mean that growers also should expect tight seedling supplies for the next growing season.

"Growers should immediately locate a reliable source of seedlings for next year," Monaghan said. "As soon as growers can find their source, they should place an order. In other agriculture news, county extension agents across the state reported hay and forage supplies were running short in some areas.

In Neshoba County a short supply of forage crops resulted in 116 farmers qualifying for government assistance with feedstuff costs under an emergency feed act.

AN AIRPLANE taking off at Stennis International Airport is very small in comparison to a weekend visitor at the field, the Fuji Film airship. The airship which was enroute from Baton Rouge, La. to Montgomery, Ala. when the unscheduled maintenance stop was made in Hancock County. The airship is 162 feet long, approximately 40 feet wide and has an airspeed of approximately 55-60 miles per hour depending on the weather. The airship was built at a cost of $2.5 million and flies all around the country. It was the winner of the 1986 Great Blimp Race held in connection with bicentennial celebrations for the Statue of Liberty.

Blind director named to Radio Service

Mike Duke knows firsthand what a vital and important service the Radio Reading Service of Mississippi (RRSM) provides for blind and print-handicapped Mississippians: he's been blind since birth.

Duke joins the staff of RRSM as its new director on Feb. 22, and he brings with him the unusual combination of experience in radio broadcasting and the personal knowledge of what it's like to live with a visual handicap.

A native of Newton, Miss., Duke graduated from the Mississippi School for the Blind and went on to attend Mississippi State University. He graduated in 1976 with a BA in communications and proceeded to work at three radio stations around the state. Duke comes to RRSM from station WQST-AM/FM in Forest, Miss., where he was music director.

"I'm looking forward to this challenge," said Duke. We'd like to try and 'beef-up' the service by learning how much it's being used now and finding out how to increase its usage."

Among Duke's ideas for expanding the service are providing more localized information programs, including on-the-air interviews with local newsmakers and conducting a survey of listeners to find out what programming is the most popular.

RRSM is part of Public Radio in Mississippi, which is a division of Mississippi ETV. In January, RRSM began its third year on the air.

Another strong desire of Duke and the staff at RRSM is to find the blind and print-handicapped people who need the service and make sure they have the special fixed-crystal receivers needed to receive it.

"Mississippi has the highest per capita rate of blindness in the country," said Duke, "and I want to make those in need of it aware of the service. That's why we want input from our listeners, because positive word-of-mouth is the best advertisement."

In 1987 the Mississippi Legislature appropriated $100,000 for the purchase of the receivers, which are made available to users free of charge.

To inquire about receiving the service, interested persons should contact Duke at 982-6301, or write Radio Reading Service of Mississippi, 3925 Ridgewood Road, Room 152, University Center, Jackson, MS 39211.

Slidell Memorial Hospital opens outpatient alcohol rehabilitation program

Slidell Memorial Hospital and its Living Center are working with area businesses to help them retain employees who are suffering from drug or alcohol addiction with a new outpatient substance abuse rehabilitation program.

Statistics show that those suffering from drug or alcohol dependence are four times more likely to have five times more workmen's compensation claims: and are performing at just 67 percent of their work capacity.

Between 14 and 20 percent of the workforce abuses drugs, while one of 10 workers abuses alcohol. Each year, business and industry loses between $40 and $100 billion due to drug- and alcohol abuse by employees.

Slidell Memorial Hospital began the outpatient rehabilitation program at the Living Center in January. It serves industry, businesses, and individuals throughout the St. Tammany and Gulf Coast areas. The program is based on the medical "disease concept" of alcoholism and features counseling, drug testing, and medical evaluation.

The program is designed as a six week program that meets nightly at the hospital. Individuals pay a flat fee that is about 1/3 the cost of inpatient drug and alcohol rehabilitation programs.

Individuals undergoing treatment with the Living Center can remain working and continue their family life as usual. The program includes physical evaluations, counseling, group therapy, family counseling and therapy, and reading materials.

Following the six-week, nightly program, individual enter into an "aftercare" program that provides support during weekly meetings. Throughout the program, physicians, social workers, and counselors evaluate participants to determine their progress.

For more information about the Living Center at Slidell Memorial Hospital, call 649-8647.

HOUSING AND THE ECONOMY
Q: Is housing more affordable than it was last year? R.T., McComb

A: Dear R.T.:
The general answer to your question regarding the affordability of housing is that over the past few years the picture of affordability has improved. This conclusion is reached from the results of two indexes, one designed by the National Association of Realtors and the other by the Joint Center for Housing Studies.

The NAR publishes a housing affordability index based on data in its existing home sales report. The NAR series measures the ability of a family earning the median income to qualify for a mortgage loan to purchase the median-priced home.

The index equals the ratio of the median family income to the income necessary to qualify for a loan, multiplied by 100. When the index equals 100, precisely using the most common type of mortgage instrument, a 20 percent down payment, a 30-year loan.

The NAR index reveals a dramatic improvement in affordability during the past few years, as growth in family income and declines in mortgage rates have out-paced moderate increases in the median price of existing home.
